BIG BOOST FOR I. & C. SUBSIDY

Senate Passes Bill Compelling Railroads to Accept Car-Load Shipments From Interurbans.

THE GOVERNOR WILL SIGN IT

Not Only Aid to Shippers But Also to Pres. Henry Who is Financing Extension.

GET OUT THE VOTE.

The slogan at the meeting
yesterday afternoon to arrange for the I. & C. subsidy election was that every business man and other persons who are interested in the extension should devote at least two hours of their time Wednesday to assist in getting out the vote and persuading men opposed to see the issue in an unselfish light. It is counted the big task tomorrow to get out the vote.

News that is expected to materially influence many in the right direction when they go to the polls to vote on the I. & C. subsidy question tomorrow was received here today when it was learned that the senate had late last night passed the Storen bill, which will, when it is signed by Governor Ralston, compel steam railroads to accept carload lots from interurban lines.

This is a big boost in favor of the traction line. It has been one of the things that has caused a few shippers in southern Rush county not to be so enthusiastic about the interurban line because they could not take a car load of anything to the nearest station and bill it through to its destination.

The railroads have, under the law
now in effect, been able to stagnate interurban shipping business in a large measure by refusing to accept car-load lots from the traction lines.
The interurbans do not reach enough points in order to handle a car-load
lot and take it to its destination
without sending it over a steam road
some of the distance. The steam roads have been protected by the law in their refusal to take such shipments from interurbans and thus hinder their competitor's business.

The passage of this measure means much to Charles L. Henry, president of I. & C., who is engineering the financial arrangements for the extension. The fact that there was such a law in Indiana that enabled railroads to refuse to accept such shipments from interurbans

LEE PYLE IS PRESIDING

President of Indiana Laundrymen's Organization Makes Report.

Lee Pyle, owner of the Rushville steam laundry, is presiding at the annual convention of the Laundry Dealers' Association of Indiana, now in session at Indianapolis. The local man is presiding by reason of the fact that he is president of the state organization. When the meeting opened yesterday, he made a report for the last year. The Indiana laundrymen expected to start agitation for "pure fabric" legislation. New officers were to be elected at the closing session this afternoon.

JOHN RYON PAID FINE FOR ASSAULT

Former Road Supervisor of Richland Township Given $5 And Costs
by Judge Megee.

WAS QUIET IN COURT TODAY

It was rather quiet in court today due to the fact that the Chaney case which was to have been tried was sent to Shelby county and the calendar was thrown out of line. The case of James G. Oldham against Owen L. Carr on a note demanding $3750 was sent to Decatur county on a change of venue.

John Ryon pleaded guilty to assault and battery late yesterday afternoon and was fined five dollars and costs amounting to $18.85. The affidavit against Ryon charged him with assault and battery with intent to kill Charles Vogel. Vogel was located after some time and agreed to allow Ryon to plead guilty to the assault and battery part of the indictment. Ryon was formerly road supervisor of Richland township and the trouble between him and Vogel was caused by Vogel's attempt to obtain a scraper from Ryon. A fight followed the controversy.

QUARANTINED REMOVED.

The quarantine has been removed
on the ten cases of smallpox in Ripley township which were confined to the households of Marshall and Samuel Hamm, who live on the John Leisure farm four miles from Carthage. The cases were reported to Dr. Frank Green, county health commissioner, Monday, February 3. The disease was in a very mild form and it was not thought it would spread outside the two families.

Fair tonight and probably Wednesday. Rising temperature.

DISTRICT MEET VOTED SUCCESS

Annual Knights of Pythias Gathering Closed Last Night After Work
in First Rank.

GRAND LODGE OFFICERS HERE

Representatives Present From Many Cities, Both in District and Out of State—Program Carried Out

The annual district meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge closed last night with work in the first rank on six candidates. The candidates were all local men. The district meeting was a great success both from the point of attendance and enthusiasm displayed. The program of both the afternoon and evening meetings was carried out in full.

The attendance from over the district was rather a disappointment as only seventeen of the thirty-four lodges in the district were represented. The attendance however was increased by a number of visitors from without the district and the state. When Harry Wade, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals, called the roll it was found that seventeen
lodges in the district were represented, seventeen lodges outside of this district and two states, Ohio and Colorado had men present.

A majority of the grand lodge officers were present. Those here included John Gaither, Grand Chancellor, of New Albany, Harry Wade, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals,
of Lafayette, John M. Lewis, Grand
Vice-Chancellor, of Seymour, Arla Brown, Supreme Representative, of Frankfort and F. G. Priest, Grand Inner-guard, of Marion. Charles S.
Davis, Past Grand Chancellor of Colorado was present as was Charles Wiker of Connersville, District Grand Deputy. Frank Priest of Marion one of the grand lodge members came to the meeting for the express purpose of seeing Frank Priest, Chancellor Commander of the local lodge. The two men spell their names exactly alike but could not scrape up a relationship.

The committee on arrangements from the local lodge composed of Frank Priest, John Young, H. M.
Cowing, William Mulno and G. P.
Hunt received much praise for their work toward making the meeting a success. The grand lodge officers were entertained at dinner last evening by James E. Watson. The next district meeting will more than likely be held in Liberty. Liberty has never had a district meeting for the want of a place to hold it and now that they have a suitable building they will make an effort next year to land
the meeting.

Will M. Sparks closed the meeting last night with a brief but eloquent talk.

FILES SUIT FOR DIVORCE

Mrs. Jennie Jinks Makes Second Attempt For Separation.

Jennie Jinks filed suit for divorce
late yesterday afternoon from Chan-cie Jinks and demands $250 alimony.
Mrs. Jinks alleges cruel and inhuman treatment and states that she was forced to return to the home of her father on account of the way he treated her. The complaint states that he failed to provide and often came home intoxicated. This is the second time Mrs. Jinks has filed suit for divorce. The first time the case was heard and Judge Blair refused a divorce.

ASSESSORS TO TAKE AIRSHIPS

Aeroplane and Balloons Are Listed
For Taxation Just Same As Corn Sheller

REAL WORK IS COMMENCED

Every Taxpayer Will be Plied With
All Sorts of Questions
This Year

The various assessors in the county, together with their deputies, are down to real work. They are going after every resident of the county and one of the questions they will put to you will be: "Where did you live last fall?"

They will also want to know your occupation and if you are the owner of real estate they want to know that. If you have this property in your wife's name they also wish to be advised.

They will ask you if you have any government or other bonds. If you happen to have a cream separator, automobile or hoop-poles, you must tell the assessor all about them and their real value. You will also be expected to list your balloons, aeroplanes and biplanes just the same as you would list a corn sheller or a bag pipe. They are all subject to taxation.

Just about the time you think you are through with the assessor and after you have supposed that the notes you hold for money borrowed and made out in the name of your wife will escape, this inquisitive official will ask if any member of your family has anything which is taxable and which you have omitted. Then he will ask you to make an affidavit
to all the statements you have made.

These men will be in the field for sixty-five days and will make an extra effort to pick up every piece of property that is subject to taxes, but the presumption is that they will miss about as much as they have missed in the past, and then it will be up to the county assessor to seek it out and get it on the duplicate.

Everything is going to be taken at its actual cash value, and there is every reason to suspect that the same rule will apply to real estate in Indiana the next time the property is appraised. At any rate the State board has said as much, the purpose being to get all property listed at its actual cash value. If this is done there will be a decided lowering of the rates and people will pay no more taxes than they are paying now.

AGED WOMAN PASSED AWAY

Pneumonia Proved Fatal to Mrs.
Sarah McMichael.

Mrs. Sarah E. McMichael, 84 years old, died last night at seven o'clock at the home of her daughter Mrs. John Gantner in West Fourth street, after a few days' illness from pneumonia. Mrs. McMichael had been ill only three or four days and her death came as a great shock to her friends. Besides Mrs. Gantner she is survived by three daughters, Mrs.
Ed Richardson, Mrs. John Hufford of Greenfield and Mrs. Frank Kenner of Indianapolis. The funeral services will be held Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the late residence conducted by the Rev. C. M. Yocum.
Burial will take place in the Little Flatrock cemetery.

Miss Geraldine Rainey is ill at her home in West First street.

MISS TILLIE KECK DEAD

Well Known Woman Expired at Home
Here.

Miss Matilda Keck, 60 years old, died this morning at one o'clock at her home in North Perkins street after a long illness from cancer. Miss Keck was a well-known woman and her death came as a surprise to her many friends although it had been expected for several days. Miss Keck is survived by three brothers,
Will, Lewis and Edward and two sisters Mrs. Ritzie and Mrs. Adolphus Green. The funeral services will be held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock at the late residence conducted by Rev. J. B. Meacham.
Burial will take place in East Hill cemetery.

TO PROBABLY HOLD OPTION ELECTION

Connersville "Drys" Discuss Plans
Preparatory to Circulating Petition to Decide Saloon Question.

ACTION IS NOT A SURPRISE

The city of Connersville will be the scene in a few weeks of a wet and dry fight if the plans of the organization headed by the dries are carried out, says the Connersville Examiner.

A meeting of those interested was held at the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon when the plans for the coming fight were discussed.
It is understood that about seventy-five people were present at the meeting and it was the sentiment of all that an election to attempt to oust
the saloons from the city should be held.

While no definite organization of the dry forces was made yesterday, it is the plan of the leaders of the movement to begin at once to organize for the fight and appoint committeemen for each precinct in the city and committees to have charges of the various departments to push the fight. * * *

Since the local option election was held at Rushville it has been rumored that the dries would ask for an election here and above action on their part will not come as a surprise to many.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sweet of Raleigh have sold their property to Mr. and Mrs. Jake Parrish and will move to Rushville. Many of their friends will call tonight to say farewell. Mr. and Mrs. Parrish will have to Raleigh in a few days.

It was unseemly weather for a harbinger of spring, but the sugar bird

GIRL CONSTABLE IN FIRST ARREST

Goldie Heathcoe, Until Lately a Rush
County Girl, Displays Prowess
as An Arrestor.

SHE TAKES THREE INTO COURT

And She Doesn't Think it Was Anything to Make a Fuss About, Either.

Miss Goldie Heathcoe, who was born and reared this side of Lewis-ville and lived there until a few years ago, is the subject of a quaint newspaper yarn in Indianapolis newspapers since she, as constable from Squire A. Deel's court in Irvington, has arrested Capt. John Hull, of an Irvington fire department,
for forcibly ejecting Williams C.
Millis, because he argued too well against suffrage for women.

When Miss Heathcoe was appointed a constable some few weeks ago,
the fact was headlined by the newspapers far and wide.

"Really," says the Indianapolis Sun, "it seems quite appropriate that a member of the weaker sex should have the power to place under arrest three strong men who, it was alleged, were giving suffrage a knock.
Seldom, alas, does it fall into women's power to avenge the wrongs done the cause—(pause for a few tears)—but chance and a bright
"constable" badge gave Miss Goldie
Heathcoe, deputy constable to Squire Deel of Irvington, the chance of her life, the other day, to do that very thing.

"Let us suppose this is dramer.
The final curtain hasn't been rung down though, for the three firemen who have to answer to the charges preferred by the complainant were to have been tried today, but the hearing was postponed until Wednesday afternoon. The climax of the scene will come at last—that is, if their trial proves to be as funny as was Mayor Shank's."

Act 1 describes the argument, eli-maxing with the ejection of Mills.
Act 2 opens with the three fireman sitting around around the fire. The Sun continues:

The door opens a shaft of sunlight staggers Capt. Hull, who rises to greet confusedly a decidedly pretty blonde girl who wears a badge under her lapel. The girl is Goldie Heath-coe, who bears warrants for the arrest of three. She is the pretty young party who was given the duties of deputy constable because she took such a hearty interest in the business done at the squire's office.

Evidently Mr. Mills had a venge-

By Practicing Economy You Buy Future Independence

Every time you practise economy, whether in the purchase of a spool of cotton at a penny less than usual, or in the buying of a home at the right time and in the right place, you are buying independence for yourself.

Save a penny here and a dollar there and the foundation for your future independence will be safely laid.

One of the best and quickest ways to secure independence
through economy is to read the advertisements in THE DAILY REPUBLICAN every day. They tell you how to get the full value for your money, when you can buy most economically, where you can secure the things you need at the lowest prices.

Follow the advertisements in THE DAILY REPUBLICAN carefully and constantly so you will be able to purchase everything you buy most economically.

FURTHER DETAILS OF GRAFT AMONG POLICE

Grand Jury at New York is Sifting the Mess.

New York, March 11.—A retired policeman, James Wrenn, who formerly was a plain clothesman in the Harlem district, told the grand jury that he had collected police protection money on behalf of inspectors James Thompson and James E. Hussey and Acting Inspector J. J. Murtha, while these men were in command of the Harlem district.

The policeman said that his service as a collector covered a period of four years. In this time his collections, as roughly estimated, amounted to about $2,500 a month. Wrenn says he received a commission of 20 per cent on all the money collected. Wrenn's story is corroborated by testimony already given.

Rosie Hertz, under sentence of a year's imprisonment in the penitentiary on a conviction of having leased property for immoral purposes, gave the names of some five or six policemen who she said had collected protection money from her, and told the names of the captains for whom she understood they were collecting.

Mrs. Hertz said that it had cost her $20,000 in the past year in connection with her various troubles with the authorities.

BETTER PAY FOR WOMEN

Illinois Legislature Busy With a Minimum Wage Law.

Chicago, March 11.—A minimum wage law which will specify $2 a day for women and girl workers in Illinois probably will be the net result of the state senatorial vice commission investigation of white slavery and its relation to small wages paid in big department stores and in factories.

Indications of this result came at the sessions of the investigators when the operating heads of the larger department stores in Chicago and mail order houses were asked to express opinions as to effects of a law of this sort. As a climax to the questioning, it was proposed that the employers and state legislators hold joint sessions and draft a minimum wage law to be presented to the legislature.

This brought from all employers examined promises of co-operation and statements that such a law would not be contested in the courts.

A TRIPLE ARMY TRAGEDY

Drunken Soldier Shoots Captain and a Comrade and Kills Self.

El Paso, Tex., March 11.—Private Carl Campbell, Thirteenth cavalry, U. S. A., shot Captain Hamilton Bowie, his troop commander, and Private John Barbee, a comrade, and then ended his own life.

The tragedy occurred at Ysleta, Tex., twelve miles east of here, where the troop is on border patrol. Captain Bowie is shot through the breast and may not live.

Campbell and some comrades had been drinking at one of the village saloons and Captain Bowie was attempting to restore discipline when Campbell began shooting.

A NEW ORDER IN THE SENATE

Old Employees Wait In Fear and Trembling.

A WHOLESALE DECAPITATION

Place Holders About the National Capitol Recognize That Their Days Are Numbered and Many Beseeching Appeals Are Being Addressed to Those in New Positions of Influence For Mercy Upon Them.

Washington, March 11.—Rapidly under way is the work of reorganizing the senate to meet the changed political conditions. Within a few days announcements will be made of the reorganized clerical forces of the senate and probably the personnel of all or nearly all the committees of the senate will be made public. There are many evidences of the passing of the old order and the inauguration of the new. The committee on committees of each political party is busy behind closed doors arranging the committee reassignments, while in the room of the committee on rules, lately relinquished by Senator Murray Crane on leaving office, sit the Democratic committee on patronage, earnestly going over the list of appointments on the payroll of the senate and intent on making changes in nearly all of the places. With the committee on patronage are the new secretary of the senate and the new sergeant-at-arms. In the corridors, gathered in little anxious groups, are elevator men, clerks, messengers and other subordinates, waiting to hear whether they are to be retained or dismissed. Many beseeching appeals have been addressed to senators and others supposed to wield influence with the senate by old employees who are in fear of losing their places. There is certain to be a wholesale decapitation.

Not the least interesting of the many evidences of change around the senate and of the capitol, are preparations being made by leading Republicans to give up commodious committee rooms with rich upholstery and artistic decorations under the force of political circumstances and betake themselves to less pretentious quarters.

The following nominations have been sent to the senate by Mr. Wilson: Peter J. Hamilton of Mobile, Ala., to be United States district judge for Porto Rico; Daniel C. Roper of South Carolina, to be first assistant postmaster general; Alex M. Dockery of Missouri, to be third assistant postmaster general; James I. Blakeslee of Pennsylvania, to be fourth assistant postmaster general; Charles P. Neill, to be commissioner of labor.

COULDN'T FORCE THEIR WAY

British Suffragettes Attempt to Rush King's Carriage.

London, March 11.—Under the pretense of presenting a petition, the militant suffragettes at least obtained the desired advertisement which was expected from forcing themselves on King George and Queen Mary while the latter were on their way to attend the opening of the new session of parliament. Beyond the advertisement, however, the women accomplished nothing of consequence.

Five women lay in wait for the royal procession near St. James palace as it came along on its way from Buckingham palace to Westminster. They stood behind lines of soldiers and police as the gilded state coach drawn by the Hanoverian horses and guarded by the yeomen of the guard, better known as the "beef eaters," came along.

Each of the women held a roll of paper decorated with the colors of the suffragettes, on which was written an address to the king praying for votes for women. As the king's coach came alongside the point where they were standing they dashed through the lines of police and soldiery and brandished these rolls with the idea of getting near enough to throw them into the state carriage. They did not succeed. One got pretty close, but was knocked down by a guardsman. Another was brought up sharply by a halberd in the hands of one of the beef eaters. Others were pounced upon by the guards and the police.

It is doubtful if the king knew what was happening. He evidently saw that there was some commotion going on, as his head was turned in the direction of the women, but he immediately turned away unconcernedly and began chatting with the queen. The whole incident was over in a few seconds and the women were in the hands of the police.

Serious Earthquake Reported.

Washington, March 11.—The destruction of Guajimiquilapa, the capital of Santa Rosa, Guatemala, with loss of life and property within a radius of eighteen miles from the city, was the result of an earthquake, it was reported by the American minister at Guatemala City. All communication with the stricken territory has been cut off.

Shock Felt Fifty Miles.

Gary, Ind., March 11.—Three hundred pounds of gun cotton exploded and wrecked the building in which it was stored at the Etna powder mills. No one was injured, but the shock was felt fifty miles away.

ARBITRATION BOARD HAS BIG JOB AHEAD

Weeks Will Be Consumed In Hearing Dispute.

New York, March 11.—To settle the demands of the firemen of fifty-four eastern roads for an increase in wages amounting in the aggregate to between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000, the arbitration board formed under the Erdman act is holding its hearings in the ballroom at the Waldorf Astoria.

Judge William Lee Chambers, ex-chief justice of the international court at Samoa and a member of the Spanish treaty claims commission, is presiding. He is the neutral member of the board. The other members are W. W. Atterbury, senior vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, and Albert Phillips, third vice president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers. W. S. Carter, president of the brotherhood, is in charge of the case for the firemen, while Elisha Lee, assistant to the general manager of the Pennsylvania and chairman of the conference committee, is looking out for the interests of the railroads.

The hearings will be continued each morning at 9:30, and probably will consume several weeks.

MORE FIGHTING IN MEXICO

Two Brisk Engagements Reported Near the Border.

Douglas, Ariz., March 11.—After a battle lasting two days, in which fifty federal soldiers were wounded, 800 Sonora state troops hold Nacozari. Two hundred and fifty Huerta soldiers who were defending the town have retreated to Agua Vircla. This news was received here when communication was restored for a few minutes with Nacozari. A special train bearing 175 defeated federals has arrived at Agua Prieta.

Word also has come of the capture of Monclova by federal troops. The Carranzaistas, who had occupied the town, fled. Carranza himself with the principal force was overtaken by federals southeast of Lampazos, where they suffered defeat. It is said that the last hope of Carranza is to reach Ciudad Porfirio Diaz and then cross the Rio Grande to escape annihilation.

Huntington Wilson, the present assistant secretary of state, will remain at his post indefinitely.

You Can Take Defective Material and Build a Buggy

Then you can take putty and paint and by properly applying these two articles change the appearance of this defective vehicle so it will deceive even the shrewdest of vehicle buyers. We have found out by experience that there is only one test that never fails to expose defective material and unskilled workmanship. Manufacturers have told us that their vehicles were built of a certain kind of material and by men who understood how to build buggies and in the wind-up we found they had misrepresented the matter to us. We are going to protect the interests of our customers and sell them exactly what we tell them we are selling them, and have adopted the plan illustrated below to determine for ourselves what each vehicle we sell is made of. A vehicle that will stand a test of this kind must be built of material that has no flaws and by men who have had experience enough to know where to re-enforce each part of the vehicle in order to give strength and make it wear.

It is your duty to find out what is under the paint of every vehicle you buy and if you buy it of us you can certainly have that privilege. We want you to come to our opening on MARCH 14th and 15th, and let us show you buggies that are built to give road service by men who know how to build them.

In buying a typewriter you want a satisfactory answer to three questions:
What will it do for me?
How well will it do it?
How long will it do it?

By answering these queries with the needs of the typewriter owner and user in mind, the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter Company has attained the front rank in the typewriter field.

Some people think that a typewriter is a typewriter and that is all there is to it. Machines may look alike but there is a lot of difference in efficiency.

Its ball bearings at all points where friction develops through action, permit close adjustment and insure correct and accurate typewriting.

More Vote Juggling.

The Indiana legislature did not adjourn without another example of the manner in which the roll call has been juggled during the session, especially in the lower chamber.

Two members of the house alleged that they had voted against the Gavitt bill for the relief of 169 Gary saloon keepers but had been marked up as favoring it, thus giving the measure enough votes to insure its passage. Had the votes of the two representatives been set down as they were given, the measure would have failed for the want of a constitutional majority. This unexpected trend of affairs indicates the invisible hold the brewery interests had on the men at the helm.

Representative Dickinson said he had at all times been strongly opposed to the bill, and that the records showed he had voted for it. He demanded that the bill be recalled, and be put to a vote again so that members could be recorded properly.

Representative Dunham, of Tipton county, had previously demanded that the roll be corrected so as to show that he had voted against the bill. He was marked up as voting for it. Dunham and Dickinson had seen in the newspapers that they had voted for the bill, and both began demanding that the roll be corrected. Dunham had made his demand on Speaker Cook before the session began, that the record as concerned himself be corrected. The Speaker said that he remembered that Dunham had voted against the bill. The journal clerk made the change on the roll sheet and on the journal.

The bill was declared Saturday to have received fifty-two votes. If the votes of both Dunham and Dickinson had been recorded against it, the bill would have failed for want of a constitutional majority, as it had been done before. Both Dunham and Dickinson, in the numerous times the Gavitt and the Carter bills had been before the house, had consistently voted against them.

Dickinson offered a resolution that the bill be recalled from the Governor, in order to permit members to be put down on record just as they stood on the bill. Barney Carter objected, giving as his reason that the bill was a senate bill, and therefore only the senate could recall it from the Governor. Speaker Cook ruled with Carter in his contention.

Then Dickinson, thoroughly aroused, and insisting that he was going to have his vote recorded correctly if there was any way possible, put in another resolution to recall the bill from the senate. Friends of the bill fought Dickinson's resolution on the ground that the senate had passed the Gavitt bill without opposition, and that therefore it would not return the bill to the house.

Representative Eschbach declared that the Speaker had been wrong in holding that the house could not recall the bill from the Governor. Speaker Cook attempted to stop Eschbach's speech with the gavel, but Eschbach continued.

Then the motion of Dickinson was carried. There were several instances in which members who were recorded as voting for the bill, cast their votes for the recall of the bill from the senate.

The Man Who Never Advertises.

A man who never advertises said to the writer the other day, "The people of this town know my store well enough, and they know me. If they want to buy anything I have, they will come around and see me."

It may be admitted that the people who have lived here right along know of the existence of this store, but what do they know about it?

The people all know about the cemetery, but they don't go there much except when some friend is buried.

People don't care to bother much nowadays about stores unless they believe the owners thereof are enterprising men.

They want to deal with merchants who seem wide awake enough to get good bargains and who have enough spirit of hustle, to reach out for a large trade and thus reduce the costs of rent, clerk hire, taxes, and other "overhead charges." The man who never solicits public patronage impresses people as too passive to look after their interests attentively.

Although the President is going to spend considerable time at the capitol, the congressmen need not worry so much for fear he will lock them out of the building.

When Wall street starts out to scare the country to death, it usually means that the other fellow has something that Wall street wants to buy.

Instead of gently shaking the plum tree, as recommended in all treatises on fruit raising, the President seems determined to cut it up for firewood.

IN-AND-OUT FEES ARE LEGALIZED

Passage of Law by Legislature

Makes it Possible For Sheriffs to Collect.

GOVERNOR SIGNS 25 BILLS

Newspaper Amendment to Corrupt Practices Act Changed so as to Reiterate Libel Law.

Before the legislature closed last night in Indianapolis, Governor Ralston had affixed his signature to twenty-five bills, vetoed four and allowed one to become a law without his signature.

The measure in the latter class legalizes sheriffs' in-and-out fees back to 1909, when the supreme court of Indiana declared the fee law of 1909 to be invalid, and fixing in-and-out fees for county sheriffs. The law will make it possible for Sheriff Bebout to collect in-and-out fees for the years he has been in office, and for William King, former sheriff, for a small part of his last term.

Governor Ralston's disapproval of senate amendments to Representative Adams' bill amending the corrupt practices statute, amendments concurred in by the house and sent to the Governor as a part of the bill, led to its recall in the house for a considerable modification of the section applying to newspapers.

The amendments made yesterday consist of inserting the word "falsely" in two parts of the section added to the Adam measure by the senate just preceding those parts of the amendment which purport to make it unlawful for a newspaper in any way to attack any candidate for public office.

Originally the senate amendment was a section to govern newspaper statements during campaign. It provided that no candidate for public office should be held up to ridicule by newspapers or be in any way attacked by a newspaper during his campaign.

The amendments made the following the recall of the bill from the Governor have the effect of modifying this amendment until it is nothing in fact but a repetition of the libel statutes. Now the bill will provide that no newspaper may print any articles concerning a candidate that hold him up to ridicule through false statements and that no false attacks upon any candidate may be printed.

When the bill was recalled from the Governor's office early during the evening session of the house the house adopted the new amendment, and Senators Stotsenburg and Wood and Representatives Spencer and Storen were appointed to the conference committee.

The amendments were understood and the action of the legislature was merely a formality. As the bill stood its constitutionality had been seriously questioned. With the insertion of the word "falsely" at the two places set out in the amendments it is nothing but a repetition of provisions in the libel and slander statutes.

The Governor also signed the Duncan house bill setting apart the first Friday in April of each year as Arbor day and providing for its observance in all schools. The bill also contained a provision praising former Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks for his effort toward conservation of natural resources.

The Stahl bill creating the office of the state high school inspector to be appointed by the state superintendent of public instruction and appropriating $2,500 annually for the salary of such official, was another signed by the Governor.

The Governor also signed the Ensle bill, giving the Circuit Court power to appoint special county commissioners when two or more of the board members are disqualified to act in a certain case; the Franks bill, to do away with school boards in towns of less than 1,500 population; the Thornton bills, on street improvement, House 527 and 528; the Carter bill, on street grades in cities, of from 20,000 to 25,000 population; the Fleming bill, to make valid conveyances in certain cases; the W. W. Spencer bill to authorize railroads to lease or sell noncompeting lines, subject to approval by the Public Service Commission; the Hughes bill, to license and regulate petty money lenders; the Stotsenburg bill, for payment of money for cemeteries to the city sinking fund commissioner; the Ratts bill, requiring county officers to turn in county funds on salary day; the Stotsenburg bill, defining cases which may be appealed to the Supreme Court; the Kattmann bill, re-enacting a portion of the 1889 drainage law, and the Yarling bill, providing for cooperations and associations.

Late last night the Governor signed the Harlan bill to enable counties to provide for county hospitals for tubercular patients.

The McKennan bill, to empower township advisory boards to order hoisting machinery for use in taking gravel from streams, was signed, as were the Hauck bill, putting the cost of preliminaries on the county where a road project is abandoned; the VanNuys bill, legalizing highway bonds in certain cases.

There was confusion over the signing of Senate Bill 28, the law for the publicity of public franchises before granting them. Through an error of a clerk it was given out that House Bill 28 had been signed.

From the standpoint of the state administration, an especially important bill which yesterday became the law when signed by the Governor, was the Cravens bill, which gives to the state board of finance power to make temporary loans on behalf of the state—to borrow money, in other words, in case of emergency, to tide the state over a treasury emptiness. In view of the report of the auditor of state that $133,000 of vouchers remained unpaid, and the final expenses of the legislative session, including a big printing bill, and some $16,000 of pay roll due yesterday, the signing of the temporary loan bill was timely. The bill carried an emergency clause and is now the law.

was one of the things that caused bonding companies to look with disfavor on the proposition of bonding for the extension.

Another thing that would be a great help toward the final arrangements for the finances of the extension would be the assurance of free right-of-way. All doubt as to the success of raising the money will be removed if the subsidy to buy the right-of-way that has not been donated is voted at the election tomorrow. The bonding companies are much more willing to finance a line having free right-of-way than one which has to buy the land over which the road is extended.

Charles L. Henry remained in Indiana until the legislature closed so that he could carry the news of the action on the bill east with him when he leaves tonight or in the morning to arrange for the bonding of the road. He was very much pleased when he learned the the legislature had acted favorably on the Storen bill.

There is no doubt but that Governor Ralston will sign the bill. There was not a dissenting vote when the bill was sent on its passage in the senate, the final count being 35 to 0. The majority favoring it in the house was just as large. With this measure a law and the subsidy voted at the election tomorrow, it may stated as a certainty that work on the extension will be started in early August.

The passage of the Storen bill means much to the farmers of southern Rush county whose district will be touched by the I. & C. It was one of the first questions farmers raised when the extension of the interurban was considered. Farmers wanted to know if they could ship their grain and live stock on the traction line. In answer to that question Mr. Henry explained the bill which was pending in the legislature, and which has finally been passed.

Rushville men who want to see the extension made were busy yesterday and today making final arrangements for the election tomorrow. They experienced some difficulty in finding men who were willing to give their services free as pollbook holders and sheriffs. These officials receive no money.

A number of interested men attended the meeting at the court house yesterday afternoon and talked of plans for the election. Several business men volunteered their services as helpers in the election, and others said they would assist in getting out the vote.

STOLEN SUIT CASE FOUND

Property Taken Last August Identified by Olive Traylor.

Chief of police McAllister has located a suit case which was stolen from Miss Olive Traylor of Connersville during the county fair in 1912 and a warrant has been issued for the arrest of thief. It was by the merest chance that McAllister happened to make the find. Miss Traylor, who formerly was instructor in English in the Rushville high school, came over from Connersville last night and identified the property. Miss Traylor set the suit case down at the I. & C. station when she purchased a ticket, and it was stolen.

CHAPTER XXI.

The Means—and the End.

Halsey turned toward Virginia. They did not again embrace, but stood silent, almost apathetic now. Passion was far away from them, indeed had never fully seized them. The despair in human love was theirs; and love is half despair. She might have been some beautiful statue in white marble, so cold was she; and as for the man who faced her, his anger gone, he himself might have been the image of hopelessness. Central figures of an irreparable ruin, and seeing no avenue to happiness, for the time neither had word for the other.

At last Halsey raised his head, as some sound caught his ear. "What's that?" he said.

"I heard it," said she. "I think it's some one coming up the walk."

"Yes," he answered. "Listen! Why, it sounds like a crowd. What can that mean, now? Wait?"

He left her and hastened out to the front door. He stood there, outlined fully by the hall lights behind him. Those who approached recognized him. He was greeted by a derisive shout, half-maudlin, scarce human in its quality. The solitary servant rushed up, excited. "What is it, Mr. Halsey?" he quavered. "Is there going to be any trouble? Oh, I ought to have gone away with the others!"

"Get out of the way," replied Halsey calmly. "Get back behind the door. I'll go out and meet them."

"Here, you men!" he called out in sudden anger to the visitors. "What do you mean, coming here this way?"

He was advancing toward them now, down the steps, into the curving walk, almost to the rim of the circle of light cast by the house lights.

"Don't you know any better than to come here at this time, you people? There's trouble in this house. There's death in here. Go on away, at once!"

The leader of the scattered group of ill-dressed men stepped forward. "No, we'll not go away at once. We know you are all right, Mr. Halsey. Trouble! We're in trouble, too! We're lookin' for some more trouble, now."

"Well, I'm not to blame for that. What do you mean? Who are you, anyway?"

"You ought to know us! We've done up some of your damned sneaks. You cut your workmen down to the last copper in wages, and you didn't pay them that. Then when the pinch came, you shut the doors and slunk off, like the coward you was! Then they came over to us, at last! Your scabs is in the unions now."

"I haven't done anything of the kind!" retorted Halsey hotly. "I haven't been to the factory for days. When I left there, every cent was paid up. That wasn't any of my business anyhow—I was not cashier, but factory superintendent."

"It's a lie, you know it's a lie! We've come to show you up. We've come to take old man Rawn and you out of this place. We ought to ride him on a rail, and you with him! That's what we ought to do! We want that money." The leader advanced toward him menacingly.

"Why, men, I have not got your money!" expostulated Halsey. "If I had, this isn't the way to get it from me! I've always used you fellows square! You've got to act that way with me. I'm in trouble now, I tell you. My wife's dead, and my baby—to-day—in here. You are accusing the best friend you have got! Where's Jim Sullivan? Where's Tim Carney? Where's any of you men that used to work with me there in the factory? Any one of you ought to know better."

"They ain't here; but don't talk that to us! We know what you was doing with them machines. We know what you was up to. You wanted to take the bread out of our mouths! We seen it all in the papers, the whole thing, plain enough. No wonder you kept it all blind as you could—you wanted to put us off the earth."

"It's a lie!" cried Halsey sternly.

HARGROVE & MULLIN,
Main Street, Rushville, Ind.

"I broke them up. I threw up my job. I quit because I didn't want to see the bread taken out of your mouths. I stood between the company and just what you say. I wouldn't allow them to make it harder for you than it was. I never lost you a cent of wages—I stood for you all the time, I'm with you now. Why, men, I've been at your meetings, I'm one of you! Don't you know? Don't you remember? You've never asked a thing of me I haven't tried to do, that was in reason. You know me! What difference about the union if I'm your sort?"

"Yes, ve do know you!" broke in a squat and pallid Jew, forcing himself through the thick to the front, and usurping the place of the wavering leader. "By Gott, ve do know you, Mister Halsey! You've lied to us, that's vat you've done! You've been to our meetings, yess, but you've betrayed us! I seen you there, yess!"

"That's not true!" answered Halsey hotly. "There isn't a word of truth in it! I've lost everything in the world I've got just because that isn't true. My wife's lying dead in that house back there—just because of that! My child's dead there too—just because of that—I've lost everything in the world I have got—just because that isn't true!"

The Jew shrieked aloud, half-insane. "To hell with this country!" he said. "To hell with the rich that rob us. If your wife's dead, it iss vat's right. My wife, she'll die too, she's starving. To hell with Rawn and all like him!"

"Look here, my men, that's about enough of that!" rejoined Halsey. "You're drunk or crazy, and we're not going to stand for that here. It's no place for this kind of talk. I tell you, I've done all I could for you. I haven't sided with Rawn. If I had, I could be rich to-day."

Came Hurrying Forward.

"You are rich!" cried the Jew; "and ve are poor. You eat fat, you sleep soft. You are rich! But vat do ve get? I'm hungry! My folks—they are starving! Ve haf no money. Ve get no money for vork ve did so long. It buys us nothing now. Meat is no more for us; bread, hardly. This is no country for the people. There is no land vere laws are just. This is no republic of man. Jehovah, send Thy power! Smite and spare not, this so wrong a land!"

"You—fanatic, shut up!" began Halsey savagely. "Get out of here. You don't know your own friends! Who's to blame for your troubles? Haven't you got heads of your own? Haven't you got votes of your own? Can't you right your own wrongs, the first minute you get ready to do it, I'd like to know? I'm for you, do you understand; but you make it hard for any one to help you. You've had sluggers after our men all the time over there, and now you come and want us to pay you for that. You're over here to make trouble tonight, maybe slug me—perhaps that's what you are trying to do to me—and you want us to pay you for that. You talk about monopolies and trusts—what you're trying to do is to make the worst trust in the country—a monopoly in ignorance and savagery. Go on home and let me alone! I tell you, my wife is dead. I am going back to her!"

"He's lying to us!" cried out a voice in the crowd. "He's trying to get us sorry for him!"

"That's it!" screamed the Jew, who had edged to the front and who now stood crouched, menacing, not far from Halsey's erect and irate frame. "That's vat he iss. He'ss only trying to fool us. Kill him! Ve've waited long enough. Gift it to him!" He sprang to one side, crouching.

Those back of them, at the gallery, in the rear of the entry, heard some sort of scuffle, a snarling of voices, curses. There were sounds of blows. Then came a flash, a shocking report; after that, a half-instant of silence, and the sound of scattering and departing footsteps.

There remained only one figure, lying outstretched on the gravel. To render succor to this, to offer aid, there was now only one human being left in all that place—she who now came hurrying forward.

Virginia Rawn half raised Halsey as he lay. "Charley!" she said quietly. "Can you talk?"

He gasped and nodded. "Through here!" He touched his chest. "I guess I'll not—be able—"

She called out, to any back of her, for aid. The frightened servant came, and between them they got him somehow into the house, dragging him to the gold-room library which they had but lately left. They placed him there upon a couch, Virginia Rawn rose and waved the man away. He hurried after help.

"Charley!" she said, turning to him; "can you talk?"

"A little. What is it, Jennie?"

"You're hurt bad—very bad."

"Through here," he said again, and touched his chest. His breath was hard. His garments were soaked with blood. His face was bluish-gray.

She looked into his soul the query of her own. Perhaps there was something not wholly unworthy in the bond between them, since now it enabled them to talk, one soul with the other, almost without words.

The great, secret, all-powerful, world current, interstellar, not international, the one great power—of love, as she once said—was theirs. Yes, it was theirs, if only for a little while.

"They've killed me," he began after a time—"I tried to do something for them. He—Rawn—would have used it for himself. I didn't want to."

"Jennie," he said, after a time; "I beg pardon, Mrs. Rawn—I forgot—would you take the doll, the little rubber one on the table there, up to the baby? Poor little thing! Oh, well!"

He sighed. She quietly laid him back upon the couch. She heard the blood drip, drip, through and across the brocade couch, falling at the edge of the silken rug, on the polished floor, eddying there; thickening there.

Doctors Use This for Eczema

Dr. Evans, Ex-Commissioner of Health, says: "There is almost no relation between skin diseases and the blood." The skin must be cured through the skin. The germs must be washed out, and so selves have long ago been found worthless. The most advanced physicians of this country are now agreed on this, and are prescribing a wash of wintergreen, thymol and other ingredients for eczema and all other skin diseases. This compound is known as D.D.D. Prescription for Eczema.

Dr. Holmes, the well known skin specialist writes: "I am convinced that the D.D.D. Prescription is as much a specific for eczema as quinine for malaria. I have been prescribing the D.D.D. remedy for years." It will take away the itch the instant you apply it.

In fact, we are so sure of what D.D.D. will do for you that we will be glad to let you have a $1 bottle on our guarantee that it will cost you nothing unless you find that it does the work.

PEOPLE TO VOTE ON PROPOSITION

Shall Indiana Celebrate Its Centennial?

LAST ACT OF LEGISLATURE

Wrangle Between the Two Houses Over an Amendment Bearing on the State Centennial Project Which Was Tacked on to the Appropriations Bill at the Last Moment Caused Official Clocks to Be Turned Back.

Indianapolis, March 11.—It actually was 1:20 o'clock this morning when the final gavel fell, though technically the Sixty-eighth general assembly expired by limitation at midnight last night. A dispute between the two houses of the legislature over the retention in the specific appropriation bill of an appropriation of $2,000,000 for the erection of a centennial memorial building led to a wrangle which necessitated the stopping of the legislative clocks while the conferees of the two houses were settling the differences. In the end the memorial proposition was retained in the bill, the matter of the expenditure to be determined by a referendum.

The specific appropriations bill, which caused the legislative clocks to be turned back, was passed by the senate at 6:30 o'clock. It contained in the way of increases several items, making a total of $72,400, that had been stricken out by the house after they had been agreed upon by the joint committee of ways and means of the house and the senate committee on finance. With every bill relating to the subject defeated, the senate incorporated in the specific appropriations bill a provision for an appropriation of $2,000,000 for a centennial building, the appropriation to be available if the voters at the next general election declare in favor of the erection of such a memorial.

Governor Recommended It.

Members of the house made preparations before the beginning of the session to strike out the section relating to the centennial building, but much of the opposition was overcome when it was made known to them that the governor desired that the conditional appropriation be made.

"The governor wishes me to state," announced Speaker Cook, "that he hopes the house will concur in the senate amendment to the specific appropriation bill in the matter of an appropriation for a centennial building, provided it contains a provision for a referendum vote. All parties declared in their platforms in favor of a centennial building, and we should not adjourn without at least giving the people an opportunity of voting on the subject."

The house had completed action on all measures pending before it that had sufficient "backing" to obtain a hearing. Hostility to the fire marshal bill was overcome and the measure passed, but the house remained firm in its resistance of every effort to give the state a centennial celebration. Senator Jackson's bill to substitute electrocution for hanging was passed.

During the last week of the session the house had disposed of nearly all those measures with a big power behind them, and during the final session there was only here and there a bill handed down for final action because of any special "pull."

Final Scenes of Horse Play.

The closing hours of the session in the house presented little of serious import to attract the members, and dignified lawmakers sang, tossed discarded bills into the air, bombarded each other with confetti, compelled members to make speeches, introduced several varieties of resolutions and motions, marched through the corridors of the statehouse and invaded the senate chamber, where members joined with a quartet in singing "On the Banks of the Wabash," the official state song, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning" and other songs.

Democratic members gave the Moose call when the speaker surrendered the gavel a few minutes to Representative Judkins the lone Progressive member, and then they drove the "Bull Moose" from the throne by pelting him with bills now deep in the aisles.

A crowd of roysterers entered the senate chamber preceding the calling of the night session, and, aided by members from the house, proceeded to destroy everything they could seize. Papers left on the desks of the senators were strewn over the floor and on the rostrum of the presiding officer. Not satisfied with their work of destruction on the floor, the roysterers mounted the rostrum, and, led by Representative Barney Carter of Lake county, proceeded to tear up papers belonging to Lieutenant Governor O'Neill. As soon as a semblance of order was restored Senator Curtis, president pro tem., mounted the rostrum, and, armed with authority from the lieutenant governor, directed the doorkeepers to clear the aisles. All of the house members were told to return to their own chamber.

PRINCE ADALBERT.

Third Son of Kaiser, Who Will Visit Washington Next June.

AMBASSADOR WILSON PUBLISHED MESSAGE

Commendation From Bryan Too Good to Keep.

Washington, March 11.—An incident which was for a time surrounded in some mystery has been cleared up by the publication of the commendatory message sent to Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson at Mexico City by Secretary of State Bryan. The publication of the dispatch, which was handed to your correspondent at Mexico City by the ambassador himself, established the fact which Mr. Bryan would not himself admit, that there had been such a message sent to Mr. Wilson.

That the ambassador's action in making the message public eventually will be regarded as unfortunate, however, now seems certain. The refusal of Secretary Bryan to discuss the message in question created for a time an embarrassing situation at the state department. Because of Mr. Bryan's attitude other officials of the department were hopeful that the message might be regarded as never having been sent, but the ambassador's publication of it prevented this hope from being realized.

It is believed that the now embarrassing situation grew out of the fact that Mr. Bryan was several days so besieged with political visitors that he had little time for state department business. He assumed, however, the duty of signing the departmental letters and telegrams. His refusal to discuss the message to Ambassador Wilson has led to the conclusion that he did not read the matter that he was signing.

Says Wife Is Innocent.

Chicago, March 11.—Charles N. Cramer, alias Conway, who was found guilty with his wife of the murder of Sophia Singer, said that his wife was innocent of complicity in the crime and that he had evidence that would liberate her. He refused to amplify this statement. "This evidence would probably set her free," Cramer said. "As for myself, I can stand it."

Marble's Nomination Confirmed.

Washington, March 11.—The senate has confirmed the nomination of John H. Marble of California to be interstate commerce commissioner to succeed Franklin K. Lane.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

George Petrevitch, a Detroit hotel keeper, has been arrested at New York charged with stealing $20,000 worth of diamonds.

Provisional President Huerta of Mexico predicts the complete pacification of the republic by May 1 at the latest.

Leach Cross, the fighting dentist of New York, knocked out Joe Mandot of New Orleans in the final round of their ten-round bout at the latter city.

Frank A. Munsey has sold his Boston Journal to Matthew Hale, national committeeman for Massachusetts and state chairman of the Progressive party.

The increase in the German military establishment will add 117,000 men, 15,000 non-commissioned officers and 4,000 officers to the army, as well as 30,000 horses.

Seven persons were killed and ten seriously injured by an explosion of dynamite at Nobel's explosive works at Ardeer, the largest explosive factory in Great Britain.

The long fight for the Indianapolis postoffice plum came to an end in Washington when President Wilson announced the appointment of Robert E. Springsteen for the post.

The interstate commerce commission has instituted an investigation to determine the relations that exist between the railroads of the United States and the private car companies.

Tinsley & Hull, Savannah cotton exporters, have failed. The liabilities are said to be between $150,000 and $200,000.

FINK EXPOSES FIREBUG TRUST

Sixty Or More Implicated In Arson Plot.

GANG'S "TORCH" CONFESSES

Conviction of Ben Kahn at South Bend Is Said to Have Convinced Ben Fink, Alleged Firebrand, That Further Concealment Was Useless, and in a Five-Hour Confession He Lays Bare the Entire Conspiracy.

South Bend, Ind., March 11.—By the confession of Ben Fink, "torch" of the "arson trust," all of the secrets of the gigantic organization for the exploitation of incendiarism have been bared to the proper officials and the authorities are now able to bring about the prosecution of from sixty to seventy-five persons who are hopelessly involved in plots and counterplots which have resulted in the destruction of property to the value of $1,000,000 scattered through four states, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Following the confession Fink was taken to Chicago by Assistant States Attorney Frank Johnson. Only a small part of the destruction of property took place in Indiana, but the fires set off in South Bend, Fort Wayne, Remington and several other cities in the northern part of the state led to the undoing of the criminals more than did the threescore of fires set off in Chicago.

Names Sixty Persons.

The confession, the most astounding in the history of the battle against incendiarism was made to Assistant State's Attorney Frank Johnson, jr., of Chicago, Prosecutor C. R. Montgomery of South Bend and attorneys for the defendant, Miller Guy and C. E. Pattee, also of South Bend. The confession, when compared with that of "Izzy the Painter" of New York, causes the latter to pale into insignificance.

Not only does Fink give the details of more than sixty fires for which he was responsible and two-thirds of which took place in Chicago, but he also gives the names of from fifty to sixty men who he says are equally guilty with him in the gigantic conspiracy.

The men involved include the assured, public adjusters, insurance adjusters and the torches. Many of the assured, according to the confession, are prominent business men in Chicago and other cities in Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Will Arrest Conspirators.

Warrants already have been prepared for the arrest of the conspirators and it is probable that several of them will have been taken into custody before the end of another day. The details of the confession will not be made public, but the officials state that it already covers forty typewritten pages. The confession was made in the county jail in this city. For five hours Fink told his remarkable story of plot and conspiracy. Then, from sheer exhaustion, he was compelled to beg for a postponement of further details.

According to Fink, the fires which he started caused damage amounting to more than $1,000,000. Chicago, he says, was the base of operations and the meeting place of the four parties of the trust, the assured, public adjuster, insurance adjuster and "torch." The confession, he states, was made because he realized that the conviction last Friday of Ben Kahn, the South Bend merchant, made his case hopeless.

LAST PHASE OF FRITZ CASE

Prisoner Has Pleaded Guilty to Second Degree Murder.

Jeffersonville, Ind., March 11.—John Fritz pleaded guilty in the Clark circuit court to second degree murder for killing Hiram B. McWilliams, at the Indiana reformatory, Nov. 21, 1911. The plea carries with it a life sentence.

Fritz was sent to the reformatory for grand larceny from Lawrence county, Sept. 2, 1907. In November, 1911, after serving more than three years in excess of the minimum term, he killed Hiram B. McWilliams, a guard, with a sledge hammer. In March, 1912, he was placed on trial and found guilty, the penalty being fixed at death. He was sentenced to hang, but the supreme court granted a new trial. In the state prison at Michigan City his father is serving a life sentence for killing a man in Lawrence county; a brother is at liberty, having been pardoned after serving part of a similar term, and another brother is in the reformatory.

Six Years For Brolley.

Indianapolis, March 11.—Thomas W. Brolley's term extension bill, giving two additional years to the state statistician, has been signed by the governor. This means six years in office for Mr. Brolley instead of the four years for which he was elected. The effect of the law is to make of the office a four-year job instead of a two-year place. Mr. Brolley gets his extra term by favor of the legislature and not by vote of the people.

Beautiful Showing of Fancy Dress Goods

A Pleasure to Show Them to You

A magnificent and unmatched showing of new dress materials, embracing the choicest weaves, most beautiful coloring and exquisite designs created this season.

While a great deal has been said about silk fabrics for spring, whatever uncertainty there may be about other sorts, the general trend seems to be toward soft weaves and crepe effects. The new weaves are astonishingly soft and are particularly attractive.

Prices range from 50c to $2.50 per yard.

How to SELL Things That Are "FOR SALE"

Write your "For Sale" ad SIMPLY stating ever detail about the article that you would want an ad to give if you were anxious to buy something of the kind yourself. Give a little thought to the "selling points" about the article, and put THEM into your ad. Then run the ad MORE THAN ONCE, if that is necessary. It may or may not be.

DRIP, DRIP OF SUGAR WATER RECALLS HAPPY DAYS

ing the rounds with his auger, tapping each quickening tree with intent to take toll, and the happy task is to follow after with a basket of spiles cut from elderberry stems, which are driven gently in with a mallet.

Then comes the setting of the vessels—all sorts and sizes of pails and pans, such as the household can supply, not forgetting the old dugout sugar troughs saved from a day even more remote. Then come the happy sugar making days—sunny, silent days following on the heels of freezing nights, with spring warmth tempering the air and faint, fugitive sounds that accentuate the stillness speaking of awakening life.

Who that was reared in the country and has memories of the old sugar camp would be willing to give them up? The slow drip, drip from the spiles as the big, patient silent trees yielded up their tithe from their heart's blood; the gathering of the sap morning, noon and night; the unrestricted munching and sucking of the little saccharine icicles, purer and better than any candy, and through it all, identified with the youthful gladness of it all, that silvery staccato.

"Peter! Peter! Peter!"
And now the vision shifts. The huge golden shield of the sun sinks from sight, twilight settles, and the old sugar camp grows ruddy with the glow from the "down wood" fire, where the big kettles are boiling furiously, fed from the barrels of gathered sap.

No Macbethian witches about their cauldron could be more weird and thrilling than this scene to the fresh imagination of the boy. How it feeds his raving appetite for adventure! You see the boy of your vision armed with a little cheap shotgun which, serving the function of a "deadly rifle," never is allowed beyond his reach. In the intervals of fire tending, and while Pap is baling the boiling sap from kettle to kettle he skirmishes out into the gloom with his trusty weapon, piercing with eagle eye, each shadowy thoroughfare, looking for skulking savages or the gleaming eyeballs of wild beasts; sometimes he grows a little self-conscious as he catches father with a smile on his lips, but "dad" is wise and remembers the time when he, too, was heroic.

Last scene of all is the fruitage of the procedure—the boiling down of the last kettle till the sap darkens and drips from the paddle in golden threads and globules of topaz.

Finally the jars of strained sirup of deepest amber, rich as the extract of honey, and with a flavor all its own, which no product of Hymettus has ever equaled. The little brown cakes of sugar, too, from the portion that was boiled down to that.

And a synonym for all this sweetness, forever identified with it, that simple carol:

"Peter! Peter! Peter!"

The fire department was called to box 42, corner of Harrison and Fifth streets last night in answer to a false alarm. In the past week three false alarms have been turned in and the police will investigate if they do not stop.

ful spirit. His comeback was certainly spontaneous.

But never are there three such polite people in the world when arrested as this trio. Three pairs of feet come off three chairs, and three caps are gallantly doffed. Miss Heathcote wasted no preliminaries on the weather.

"Come with me hither," she says, or words to that effect, and the three go to Squire Deel.

Says Miss Heathcote: "I do not see anything to make such a fuss over. There is nothing remarkable in my having the office of constable. Those men were nice to me, and it wasn't at all embarrassing to tell them what I came for. Don't you dare take my picture."

Squire Deel thinks that although Miss Goldie Heathcote is one of the most modest little girls in Indianapolis and that the business of arresting folk would be obnoxious to her if it would to any woman, still—business is business—and the squire doesn't mind a little extra noise occasionally. Remember when the boom for weddings out at his office was started by a newspaper yarn?

Squire Deel is known by his many friends as one of a most optimistic, kindly man. He took a fancy to Miss Heathcote because she showed such a devotion to her little crippled brother and looked after him as long as the little lad lived. Goldie was given a position as his clerk. Her brightness and conscientiousness then won her a public office.
